

National Honor Society students at Our Lady of the Hills Regional Catholic High School delivered toys to the Raphael Community Free Clinic to be handed out to families for Christmas. OLH became involved with the program last year when John Riedman, chaplain at the school and a Raphael Clinic board member, told them about the program. The school collected about 130 toys, an increase from last year. The program is spearheaded by the NHS, but the entire student body gets involved in the two week toy drive.
